

Denial and Doubt: Women and Chronic Illness.

Many disabled women with Chronic Illness are not believed by health professionals when they talk about their symptoms.

This means that women with Chronic Illness can find it hard to access the support that they need.

Women are more likely than men to have certain Chronic Illnesses, such as Lupus.

So because women with chronic illness are often disbelieved, this means there is a lack of research into Chronic Illness.

The Women's Health Strategy from the Department for Health and Social Care will be published soon with more information on this.